

6/16/08 Investor Business Daily

G86

Chief executive departures 2008 vs. 2007

May CEO departures, by sector

Sector	# of exits	Sector	# of exits
Health care/products	24	Computer	6
Government/nonprofit	14	Drugs	6
Financial	10	Chemicals	4
Insurance	9	Industrial goods	4
Entertainment/leisure	8	Media	4

ease
 ty isn't spurring a surge in CEO turnover was down from a year earlier. It's the 38 that monthly exits slipped er marks. Health care posted 108

MANAGING FOR SUCCESS

Lands-On Method Of Hiring

Source's CEO interviews everyone from directors to receptionists

ERN
 BUSINESS DAILY
 at Greyhound bus
 "Leave the Driving
 chief execs leave hir-aff and line manag-
 the right people is ss that most CEOs
 ps more honchos
 red in the process.
 S. McKiernan, the
ource, an elec-company based in Calif, whose cli-rbucks<sup>seu</sup>, Home

EXECUTIVE BRIEFING

BUSINESS TRAVEL

Aging Work-Life Balancing Acts

Typical road warriors are getting better at keeping business travel from disrupting their lives.

A survey by Expedia Corporate Travel found that 66% of U.S. business travelers don't have trouble balancing work with personal obligations.

One way they do it is by tapping technology or other steps to stay in touch with loved ones on the road. Travelers are also finding ways to make themselves more comfortable on business trips.

The survey says 86% of respondents stay connected with friends and family via e-mail and phone

The study by AT&T says two-thirds of IT honchos are fearful that criminals and pranksters will escalate their efforts to invade corporate databases by 2013.

The next most-mentioned threats are internal — including accidents, sabotage and glitches caused by remote workers. Nearly 1 in 5 U.S. businesses also don't have a business continuity plan in place.

EMPLOYEES

Making Off With Office Supplies

Nearly 1 in 5 workers report that they have taken office supplies for personal use in the past year.

The report by recruiting and staffing firm Spherion warns that such